

Amarjargal Batdelger, MD, MSc

Dr. Amarjargal Batdelger is a gastroenterologist, gastrointestinal endoscopist, and gastrointestinal motility specialist at Intermed Hospital, Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia. She serves as a Board Member of the Mongolian Society of Neurogastroenterology and Motility.

She received her Doctor of Medicine (MD) degree from the Health Sciences University of Mongolia and her Master of Science (MSc) in Medicine from the Mongolian National University of Medical Sciences.

She completed fellowship training in Gastroenterology and Hepatology in Mongolia and advanced clinical training in Neurogastroenterology and Gastrointestinal Motility at Chulalongkorn University, Thailand. In 2026.

Her clinical practice and research focus on neurogastroenterology, esophageal motility disorders, high-resolution esophageal manometry, therapeutic gastrointestinal endoscopy, and Helicobacter pylori infection. She has presented her research at numerous international conferences in Asia and is committed to advancing gastrointestinal motility diagnostics, endoscopy, and collaborative clinical research in Mongolia.

